

Stateful Scripting - A quick video primer for those new to scripting and orchestration

While I do a lot of scripting and orchestration in my day-to-day activity, I sometimes find that those around me may not have had the same exposure. In order to bring some of my team up to speed on the high level principal of orchestration I gave a lightning talk at the office to talk about how and why I script my tasks.

It's a pretty quick video, but hopefully it is a good primer on the "why" of scripting and a little bit of the "how" without diving into programming specifics.

I think of this as scripting for non-scripters. Let me know if this is helpful. I love to hear feedback and perhaps I'll do a more in-depth version.
