We had a chance to sit down with David Siles (@dsiles), CTO of DataGravity to chat on a few very interesting items. The conversation spans everything from the recent important announcements from DataGravity, the upcoming VMworld community events, and a very informative end-to-end view of data security practices and the current trends in the industry.

Thank you to David for a great chat, and make sure to visit the <http://vBrisket.com> to find out about the events for VMworld 2016 including the multi-city bus tour!
